Section 4914. Limitation of time for presenting claims.

"The court of probate may order executors and administrators to cite the creditors of the deceased whose estate is in settlement before it to bring in their claims against such estate within such time as it shall limit, not more than twelve months nor less than six months, by posting a notice to that effect on the signpost nearest to the place where the deceased last dwelt and in the same town and by publishing the same in a newspaper having a circulation in the probate district in which such estate is in settlement and by such further notice as such court may deem necessary, or, in case such deceased was not a resident of this state, by posting such notice on such signpost in the probate district in which such estate is in settlement, and by such other notice as such court may direct; and, if any creditor shall fail to exhibit his claim within such time as may be limited by such order, he shall be barred of his demand against such estate; but, when a right of action shall accrue after the time limited for the presentation of claims, it shall be exhibited within four months after such right of action shall accrue and shall be paid out of the estate remaining after the payment of the debts exhibited within the time limited. Such court may, for cause shown upon hearing after public notice, limit a further time for the presentation of claims, not exceeding the period which it might have originally limited; and may, if any creditor, through no default of his own, shall have failed to present his claim within the time limited, for cause shown upon hearing after public notice, extend the time for such creditor to present his claim not more than thirty days beyond the period which it might have originally limited . . ."
